CORONATION DAY.

The Forty-Ninth Anniversary of the Queen's Coronation.

A Grand and Imposing Spectacle—The Ceremonies on the Occasion.

On the 28th of June, 1838—49 years ago to-day—Queen Victoria's coronation took place in London. The great body of the spectators were congregated in the Nave, along the sides of which galleries were constructed arranged in an amphitheatrical form, with ten rows of benches rising above one another, and calculated to hold at least 1500 persons. Very shortly after 5 o'clock, the hour at which the Abbey was opened, these galleries began rapidly to fill, and by 7 o'clock were crowded. The spectacle presented by this vast audience was very striking. The diversified colors of the different dresses, naval and military officers in their respective uniforms, clergymen in canonical robes, civilians in endless variety of apparel—from the most to the ordinary every day garments (for the regulations as to full dress were by no means enforced, though none were to be seen who were not well attired)—and above all, the countless hues which marked the dresses of the fair—all combined to render the scene at once picturesque and pleasing. The patience of these spectators was to be severely tried by a six hours' delay; but there were not wanting numerous objects to divert their attention and while away the tedious interval. Those more distinguished personages who had seats in the choir had of course to pass up the nave, to reach their various destinations, and were a source of perpetually changing attraction. Now, a judge of the land, with slow and legal step, paced the floor; then a peer of the realm arrayed in coronation robes of crimson velvet, edged with ermine and coronet in hand, not unfrequently with a real and unassumed dignity of port and bearing that forcibly reminded us of the

of by-gone ages, and led us for a moment to believe that "the age of chivalry" had not yet fled; anon, still more attractive, came some noble dame—her splendid flowing train spreading around her in luxurious magnificence, her fair and lofty brow bearing the impress of nobility, followed perhaps by some "lovely daughters of a noble house," not unworthy of their titled ancestors; officers, "in all the pomp and pride of glorious war," bishops and aldermen, pursuivants, gentlemen-at-arms pass in quick succession. Between seven and eight companies of foot guards arrived and lined the hall. Many of the foreign ambassadors now arrived; and the novelty and richness of their dresses excited great admiration, not, however, equal to that which was awakened by the appearance of some of the younger branches of the female aristocracy, who as they tripped lightly along the hall, seemed incarnations of their beauty needing not the aid of the costly gems that glittered around their persons. The Attorney-General came in his official costume as first law officer of the Crown, accompanied by his noble Consort, the Lady Stratheden, in her robes as peeress. One noble peer came, attended by a little child of such remarkable beauty as attracted universal observation, as page, carrying his coronet. About half-past nine a cheer was heard outside, which announced the arrival of some distinguished person; and a few minutes after his grace the Duke of Wellington entered. His appearance was greeted by an enthusiastic shout of applause. The Marquis of Normandy (late Earl Mulgrave) was received in a similar manner. Shortly after eleven the special envoys from foreign powers began to arrive. The magnificence of their dresses, and that of their suites were greatly admired. Marshal Soult was most cordially cheered. Their royal highnesses the Duchess of Cambridge and Kent were enthusiastically received, especially the latter. Their royal highnesses the Duke of Sussex and Cambridge met with as hearty a reception. As slowly wound its way between the lofty aisles, the spectacle presented was one as gorgeous and impressive as anything that could well be imagined. When her most gracious majesty came within sight, the vast audience simultaneously rose; and a shout "loud as from numbers without number," rung through the venerable arches of the Abbey, and was re-echoed by the multitudes without, testifying in sincere and heartfelt tones the loyalty and affection with which the youthful and august monarch of these realms was regarded by her thousands of assembled subjects. Her Majesty, as she walked up the nave, displayed perfect self-possession, returning the enthusiastic greetings with which she was received in a manner marked by that union of gentleness and dignity so characteristic of Her Majesty. Her Majesty was immediately preceded by Lord Melbourne and the Duke of Wellington (as constable of the tower)—a circumstance which was remarked by the spectators, and elicited no slight applause. On Her Majesty's entering the choir, the cheering was again renewed, and was indeed only put a stop to by the opening of the coronation anthem.

THE CORONATION CEREMONY.

Upon the conclusion of the anthem, the Archbishop of Canterbury, together with the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Constable, and the Earl Marshal, advanced to the east end of the platform, where the Archbishop made the recognition in the following words:

"Sirs—I here present unto you Queen Victoria, the undoubted Queen of the realm, wherefore all you who are come to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?"

These words were repeated at the north, west and south sides, during which Her Majesty, remained standing by her chair, and turned towards the people in each direction at which the recognition was made, the people replying with loud acclamations of "God save Queen Victoria," and when this ceremony was concluded, the trumpets sounded and the drums beat. The Queen, attended by those already mentioned, approached the communion rails, and kneeling, made her first offering of an altar-cloth of gold, which was placed on the altar, followed by an offering of an ingot of gold of one pound-weight, which was placed on the oblation basin.

After a short prayer, Her Majesty arose, and attended as before, went to

THE CHAIR OF STATE.

The regalia were then placed on the altar, and the Litany proceeded with. At the conclusion of the Litany, the Sanctus was sung, after which the Archbishop began the Communion Service. The sermon being concluded, the Archbishop advanced and ministered the questions to the sovereign prescribed by the service. These being answered, Her Majesty went to the altar, where, kneeling at the rails, and laying her right hand on a copy of the Gospels, she took the Coronation Oath, kissed the book, and set her sign-manual to a copy of the oath. Four Knights of the Garter then held over the Queen's head a rich pall of cloth of gold; the Dean of Westminster poured some of the consecrated oil from the ampulla into the anointing spoon, with which the Archbishop anointed Her Majesty on the head and hands in the form of a cross, pronouncing the words, "Be thou anointed," etc. The Lord Great Chamberlain receiving the spurs from the Dean, knelt down and presented them to Her Majesty, who returned them, to be laid again on the altar. Lord Melbourne, carrying the sword of state, now delivered it to the Lord Chamberlain, receiving another in a purple scabbard, which he delivered to the Archbishop, to be laid on the altar. An appropriate prayer having been said, the Archbishop, attended by all the other dignitaries of the Church, took the sword, and delivered it into Her Majesty's hands, by whom it was returned, to be laid on the altar. This sword was then redeemed by for one hundred shillings, and was carried unsheathed during the remainder of the ceremony. Her Majesty was then invested with the mantle of cloth of gold. The Archbishop presented the orb, which was returned, and laid on the alter; then placed the ruby ring on the fourth finger of the Queen's right hand. The Duke of Norfolk presented a glove for the right hand, embroidered with the Howard arms, which Her Majesty put on. The sceptre, with the cross or royal sceptre, and the sceptre with the dove or rod of equity, were then delivered. The Archbishop, then standing before the altar, took up St. Edward's Crown, and blessing it with the prescribed prayer, advanced, attended by the dignitaries, and placed it on Her Majesty's head. The people shouted "God Save the Queen!" and immediately the peers and peeresses present put on their coronets; the bishops their caps; and the kings of arms their crowns; the trumpets sounded, the drums beat, and the Tower and Park guns were fired. When the plaudits had ceased, the Archbishop pronounced the exhortation, "Be strong and of good courage," etc; and the choir sang the anthem The Queen shall rejoice, etc. The Archbishop then presented and pronounced the benediction. The Te Deum was then sang, at the commencement of which the Queen removed to the chair on which she first sat, attended by the chief officers as before. At the conclusion of the Te Deum, the Queen was led to the throne by the Archbishop, and all the noblemen on the platform ranged themselves about the steps of the throne. After a short exhortation from the Archbishop, the Queen returned the sceptres to the two noblemen from whom she had received them, and then the ceremony called the Homage began. The Archbishop and Lords Spiritual then kissed Her Majesty's hand and retired. The Dukes of Sussex and Cambridge ascended the steps of the throne, and taking off their coronets, repeated the words of homage, then severally touched the crown and kissed Her Majesty's left cheek. The Dukes and other peers thereupon performed their homage, the senior of each degree pronouncing the words, and the rest of each degree saying after him; and each peer of the same degree successively touching Her Majesty's hand and then retiring. During this ceremony, the choir sang the anthem, This is the Day the Lord hath made, etc., and the Treasurer threw about the medals of the coronation.

THE HOLY BIBLE

THE PATINA AND CHALICE

with the bread and wine were now placed on the altar, and the Queen laying aside the crown, made her second offering of a purse of gold. The Holy Communion was then celebrated, all the officiating clergy and Her Majesty partaking part of the elements. During the conclusion of the service, Her Majesty remained seated on the throne, wearing her crown and holding the two sceptres. When the benediction was pronounced, marking the conclusion of the religious service, Her Majesty, attended as usual, repaired to St. Edward's Chapel, and laying aside the scarlet coronation robe, was arrayed in a robe of purple velvet, and received the orb from the Archbishop. In the meantime the procession was being reformed. Everything being ready, Her Majesty proceeded to the door by which she had entered, wearing her crown, and bearing in her right hand the royal scentre, and in her left the orb. The four swords were carried before the Queen as before; in fact, the same order was preserved, only that now all the noblemen and clergy were covered.

THE PROCESSION

commenced to leave the Abbey at twenty minutes to 4 o'clock; but Her Majesty did not get to her carriage till twenty minutes to 5. The same enthusiasm which marked the approach to the Abbey now showed no diminution all along the return route. When the Queen had passed, the vast crowds slowly dispersed, having witnessed a display the like of which but few are ever destined to gaze upon.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain. *

JERSEYS! JERSEYS! JERSEYS!—The latest styles received this day at the "Lansdowne House," Yates Street.

JOHN PARTRIDGE, Prop.

—Money saved by having your plans

REWARD OF VASSALAGE.

A DIALOGUE.

John—Well, Sam, is it really true that the interests of the province have been ignored by the Federal Government after being treated so handsomely by us?

Sam—Yes, John, it is not only true but disgraceful to think that the greatest proportion of voters in the province were fooled by a few men who had received favors to elect mere tools as supporters of the government, and members for whom the government had neither respect nor regard, getting them to give a blind support to all important job measures, until even supplementary estimates were filled and without the slightest regard to the wants or requirements of the province.—

John—I am also told that instead of restricting Chinese immigration, Chinese women supposed to be married will be admitted free of duty.

Sam—Yes, and some of our members assisted to carry it as a government measure in opposition to the wishes of their constituents, so that we shall not only be inflicted with a commercial, but a natural increase of that most undesirable element of pauper creating individuals.

John—I am also informed that the tariff has been raised on many things which we do not produce, and notably on farming implements and necessaries of life. What effect do you think that will have on this province?

Sam—Situated as we are, and in proximity to a country which is self sustaining, and taxation and wages more favorable to the cost of living, it will drive from the country all the more hardy and enterprising of our laboring classes, who will prefer competition with a wider field for action than to lead a lingering life of beggary and become slaves to a false sentiment which is making the rich richer, and the poor poorer.

John—How do you explain that, for, like many of my countrymen, I can hardly understand anything but a knock on the head, or a hungry stomach?

Sam—Since you wish to know, it is most easily explained, and to illustrate, I might cite the Jubilee. As you are aware, the whole thing was started by the aristocracy representing a class system of Government, and who are interested in its maintenance. Having its representatives everywhere, each little clique starts the ball rolling and secures the acquiescence of the general public to the movement, in the hope that the display of vanity and expenditure of money will help rickety business men, as well as keep alive the sentiment of adulation which is necessary to the existence of class and hereditary systems of government.

John—Now, I begin to understand; but what persons are more immediately interested in these mock exhibitions?

Sam—The persons directly interested are an hereditary class, who are represented by a nominal king or queen, and enjoy the leading honors of the state, as well as the patronage and benefits associated therewith. The next class is a very large one, and forms the spish portion of society seeking by every toadying device to get within the charmed circle of drones who live on the people's patrimony and toil. Another are the recipients of their favors, contractors, tradesmen and almost every denomination of professional handicraft, more or less dependent on patronage. You will then perceive when all these people directly interested about "Long live Pharoah," the ignorant and otherwise thoughtless catch up the cry, regardless of principle or interest, and answer as mere puppets or tools to the wishes of their masters.

John—Of course that conduct applies to older countries than ours; but it seems to me as if there was something wrong even here.

Sam—I should say so. Have not grants of land, and money as well as exclusive privileges, been granted to corporations who almost exclusively own the country and control its legislative wisdom. The country is filled with J. P.'s, some of whom being of questionable character, and devoid of ability further than to echo the wishes of their masters, do their bidding without remonstrance or inquiry. Has not the management of education been placed in the hands of church and state, and ignorance and hypocrisy entrusted with the discharge of the most sacred functions of the people. Is not the public money squandered recklessly in corrupting public morals and buying support instead of appealing to conscientious convictions? Are not the laws of the country monopolistic in their tendencies, conserving the rights of individuals at the expense and sacrifice of those of the nation? Are not the public lands of the provinces withheld from purchase and development to enhance the value of private property, and capital driven from the country by class legislation? Finally, have we not a country without a policy in the hands of mere salary grabbers, maintaining a burlesque dignity far in excess of our revenue with a limited borrowing capacity, and resorting to subterfuges to fill a depleted treasury?

John—Thank you. I never heard the matter so well explained before and only wonder that the people who pay the taxes and do the work of the country are so easily fooled, but perhaps they are so easily fooled, but perhaps they deserve it and must pay their experience same as you and I. Good day, Sam; I will see you again in a day or two.

SAM.

Attractions at Fulton Market.

Residents of the city, as well as visitors, should not miss the opportunity of visiting Fulton Market, Johnson street, where are to be seen a collection of monkeys, trained; speaking parrots, mocking birds, English thrushes, black birds and sterlings, magpies, and many other species of the singing and feathered tribe. Tourists in want of souvenirs can do no better than give this place a call. *

Five masked men held up the passengers on a Grand Trunk train at Fort Gratiot on Friday. The passengers lost all their money. Three men have been arrested.

St. Gabriel village will soon be annexed to Montreal, bringing the population of the city up to two hundred and twenty-five thousand. The trade of that port shows a steady expansion, there being an increase of 20 vessels over last year, which was the banner year so far.

MUNICH, June 24.—The Bavarian government has officially declared King Otto insane.

A terrible accident occurred on the Hawkesbury railway, Australia, on Thursday, which resulted in the killing of seven persons and the injuring of forty. The disaster was caused by the failure of the brakes to work while the "Senator" Voorhees.

Our enterprising morning contemporary publishes what purports to be an interview with "Senator" Voorhees of Indiana, on the "issues of the day." Mr. L. C. Voorhees, of New York, was in the city for some days, and left for Alaska on the Olympian this morning, but Senator D. W. Voorhees has not been in Victoria. Senator Voorhees is one of the leading orators in the Senate, and a man of broad and enlightened views. Such an eminent statesman would not commit himself to a statement such as this, "There is no immediate necessity that I perceive for adjusting the boundary line (Alaskan) so long as such friendly feelings exist between Canada and the United States," because he knows that when "friendly feelings exist" is the right time to adjust disputes, &c. Our excellent contemporary, having been imposed upon by a similarity of names, owes an apology to Senator Voorhees, which, as a matter of course, it will not make.

Monster Berries.

In the garden of James Moss, florist and gardener, Fort and View streets, is at present to be seen some of the largest and most luscious strawberries ever grown on Vancouver Island. They are as large as good-sized potatoes and of excellent quality throughout. This afternoon a visit was paid to this gentleman's garden by Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brydges, both of whom expressed surprise at the great size of the berries, as well as pleasure with their flavor and sweetness. During their travels in this and other countries they had never seen anything to approach the berries clustering on the vines in Mr. Moss' garden. With the roses, flowers and annuals they were delighted. Mr. Moss' garden is a spot tourists and visitors should not fail to visit whilst in the city. It is convenient to all the hotels.

Interesting to Fruit Growers.

The well known and reliable firm of Stone & Wellington, Toronto, proprietors of the Fonthill, Ont., nurseries, having established a branch of their business in Victoria, under the management of Mr. Wyman Clark, the people of this province can now supply themselves from this large nursery, embracing as it does nearly 500 acres, with all they may require in fruit or ornamental stock and feel certain that they are getting that which they purchase, as each variety is guaranteed to be true to name and quality; thus avoiding loss and annoyances consequent on purchasing from merely tree brokers, who are said to be numerous in this province and throughout the coast.

Gratifying News.

The report that a considerable reduction will take place in C. P. R. rates from this city to mainland points in British Columbia is hailed with satisfaction by the merchants of Victoria. Mr. G. V. Heathcote, contracting agent for the C. P. R., resident in this city, is to-day interviewing the merchants in relation to future shipments. If the new rates are at all satisfactory there can be no question as to the increase in trade that will take place. It is to be hoped a considerable reduction in rates to Victoria from mainland points will also be made. The new tariff sheet will be out in a few days, and will be eagerly read by our merchants as well as by importers on the mainland.

Interior News.

The Indian who robbed Mr. Brick McQueen of $300 was captured at Penticton by Mr. McLean, of that place, and almost all the money recovered.

Messrs. Tronson and Christian, of Priest's Valley, Okanagan, left Docks on Thursday last with 100 head of horses for the Northwest, and Mr. Ed. Woods left the same time with 60 head of cattle.

Mr. John McIntyre, who has been prospecting for the last 15 years on Cherry Creek, Okanagan, is in town. He believes he has received a just reward for his toil, having discovered a splendid ledge of gold-bearing rock.

Hot for Vancouver.

Next Friday will be observed as a grand gala day in Vancouver. The terminal city will on that occasion celebrate the 1st of July, (Dominion Day), Her Majesty's Jubilee, and the completion of the C. P. R. to that city. The C. P. N. Company have decided upon issuing round trip tickets at the low fare of $3 for the occasion. The Queen City Band will accompany the Victoria excursionists.

Supreme Court of Canada.

The British Columbia case of Sea vs. McLean has been decided in favor of the appellant, Samuel Sea. It was an appeal from the decision of the Full Court of this province giving judgment against Sea. The case was argued last October at Ottawa and judgment given last week. J. Roland Hett for respondents, and Eberts & Taylor for appellants.

Victoria Driving Park.

On Dominion Day, Friday next, the owners of the above Park have arranged for several trotting and running matches, as well as foot racing; several purses will be given to the winners. The fourth race will be a match for $50 aside. Races to commence at 1 p. m. Go and see the fun.

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—In the Colonist of this morning there appears the particulars of an interview with a Mr. L. B. Voorhees, (not the Senator of that name), in the course of which he is reported to have said in relation to the Alaska boundary, that: "There is no immediate necessity, that I perceive, of adjusting the boundary line so long as such friendly feelings exist between Canada and the United States." It seems to me that is the strongest possible reason why the demarkation between Alaska and British Columbia should be now carried out instead of being put off until some future time when the cordial relations now happily existing between these countries might be more strained, although it is to be hoped that the same good feeling may always continue. There is another most cogent reason why the boundary should be established at once. Quartz developments of great moment are being pushed, and that successfully in the belt of Alaska lying to the west of this province, and if an imporant discovery were to be made in the vicinity of where the boundary is supposed to be, then it would be much more difficult to agree upon what ought to be the dividing line between the two countries. It must be conceded by every one who is acquainted with the language of the Treaty that such a boundary as is provided for in that instrument would be expensive to fix, and if established would be ridiculously undesirable. Let the two governments appoint a commission with power to establish a few points at a distance from the coast to be agreed upon, then run straight lines between such fixed points. This could be done on a basis fair and equitable to both powers, and it is safe to say at one fifth of the cost of establishing a boundary where there are not mountains corresponding to the windings of the coast, as is provided for. Let the powers agree upon it at once. JOHN GRANT.

AMERICAN NEWS.

A WISCONSIN FIRE.

HURLEY, Wis., June 28.—A fire broke out in one end of Silver street, one of the principal thoroughfares in this city, beginning at noon, and five blocks in the business part of the city were destroyed. The fire was working towards the Lake Shore depot at last account. Telegraphic communication was interrupted. No estimate of the loss can be made as yet. It will be very heavy.

LATER.—A later dispatch records the fire somewhat under control.

STILL LATER.—The fire is now under control. Five blocks of buildings were reduced to ashes. The loss is estimated at seven hundred thousand dollars.

In the Supreme Court yesterday, the case of C. G. Bowden vs. Samuel Clay, was heard before the Chief Justice. The jury could not agree, seven being in favor of the plaintiff and the others in favor of the defendant. His Lordship, on motion of Mr. S. Perry Mills, gave judgment for the plaintiff with costs. M. Thornton Fell appeared for Mr. Clay. It is reported the case will be repealed.

Before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice McCreight, sitting as a Divisional Court, the case of Earl, appellant, vs. Turner, Beeton and others was heard. This was an appeal from the order of Mr. Justice Crease in the case of Uriah Nelson's interest in the firm of Bell & Nelson, Clinton. The appeal was dismissed. Mr. Taylor for appellant; Mr. Theo. Davie, Q. C., for respondents.

Yerxa and wife, appellants vs. Fuller, respondent. This was an appeal case from the order of Justice Crease. Their Lordships dismissed the appeal with costs. Mr. H. D. Helmcken (of Drake, Jackson & Helmcken) for the appellant, and Mr. Theo. Davie, Q. C., for the respondent.

It Will be Built.

Our latest advices from Winnipeg are to the effect that the government are determined to build the Red River Valley Railway to the boundary at all hazards. The bonds of the province have been floated for a million at 102½. Mr. M. J. Harvey, well known in this province, will be in charge of the construction department. He expects to have the line in operation by the middle of October, in time to move the fall crop. The line will be 68 miles in length, and will connect at Emerson with the American system.

The Premier.

The many friends and admirers of the Hon. Attorney-General will learn with satisfaction that he has so far recovered as to be able to undertake a journey to Lillooet to visit his constituents, amongst whom he will spend some time. He leaves by to-morrow morning's steamer for the interior where he will remain for a few weeks.

Colored Minstrels.

The Law Johnson Company of colored minstrels arrived by the Princess steamer this morning and will play at the Victoria this evening. The performance given by them is said to be first class. They will positively give but one performance here as they leave to-morrow for Winnipeg and the east.

THE LATE SESSION.

The first session of the sixth parliament of Canada cannot be said to have been productive of much effective legislation. It will rather be famed for its great money and land votes. The following expenditures were voted which do not include many extra items aggregating in the neighborhood of $500,000, making a grand total of $48,750,000:

Ordinary estimates for 1887-88	$25,046,825
Capital expenditures for 1887-88	4,251,000
Supplementary estimates for 1886-87	3,213,619
Supplementary estimates for 1887-88	1,956,939
Additional subsidy to Prince Edward Island	20,000
Additional Judge for Quebec	4,000
Two new Ministers, at $6,000 each	12,000
Pension for Hon. Laviolette	2,600
Grant to Mr. Laviolette as removal expenses	1,000
Railway subsidies	2,187,600
Loan to Montreal Harbor Commission	225,000
Loan to Quebec Harbor Commission	1,250,000
Total	$48,225,814

To which has to be added the extras brought down the last day of the session already named. The land grants voted will aggregate 4,057,200 acres, believed to be worth at least $1 per acre, which added to those above referred to will swell the total aggregate to $53,000,000. The Toronto Mail considers this magnificent work for a nine weeks session, and adds that "few parliaments in the world could dispose of the revenue and the assets of the country at the rate of five and a half million dollars per week. Many of the changes will place upon us burdens in perpetuity. The Prince Edward Island subsidy increase will of course never be removed, while the statutory increases in the annual expenditure for the extra judge and the new ministers will hold good forever. The loans to the Montreal and Quebec Harbor Boards bear interest, and the chances are that they may pay for themselves. But the experience of such loans is that the parties receiving them devote their attention from the date of the advance to the securing of their remission. The railway subsidies are in an annual charge. The money to pay them, however, will have to be borrowed, and the interest upon the debt thus incurred will be $87,000 annually. In connection with this railway subsidy question, it is interesting to note that since 1882, when the system was introduced, Parliament has voted $14,995,000 and 8,752,000 acres of land in aid of railways other than the Canadian Pacific, and other than those now being bonused. Of these grants, $3,982,000 have been paid in money, and a proportion of the land grants has been handed over to the companies which have earned them. The figures of previous railway grants, of this year's grants, and of the projected expenditures, look very large, and it must be said that their appearance does them no injustice. For Canada the outlays are simply enormous, and we believe we express the opinion of the general public when we say it is time they were heroically curtailed."

SHOULD HAVE A MINT.

We believe the period has been reached in our history when Canada should have her own mint. It may not be generally known that our silver and copper coinage comes from England. The paper money is made in the country, and we see no good reason why the gold, silver and copper coin should not be made within the Dominion. Canada has her silver and copper coin, but no gold circulation medium. The coin of a foreign power is circulated in this province in large quantities. This is not as it should be. Our mountains are loaded with mineral wealth. This is the province in which a mint should be started, for here it could be operated economically and with advantage to the country at large. The report of the British mint shows that colonial coinages were more numerous and valuable during the past year than ever before. Canada had 4,667,308 pieces struck off, the aggregate value amounting to about $300,000. Canada should by this time have her own mint. It certainly is ill in accord with the National Policy, which our rulers swear by, that while putting on high taxes to compel the public to support home manufactures, the government should send over to Britain to get the money of the country manufactured. We should like to see a little more of the N. P. idea carried into the dealings of the government in this as well as other matters. But we are continually hearing of their importing supplies and having work done abroad, that could be just as well performed at home. Will the British Columbia representatives take the matter in hand?

Turkey has proposed to modify the new convention with England regarding Egypt in the direction of providing for the Turkish occupation of Egypt in the event of disorders occurring after the British occupation has terminated, leaving the Sultan the discretion of asking for British aid or not, as he prefers. The Marquis of Salisbury has refused to consent to the proposed modification.

"NOT A CENT."

Some time ago the Ottawa Parliamentary correspondent of the Colonist telegraphed to that journal that British Columbia had not received even the proverbial shilling when the Dominion Government was lavishing its wealth upon the provinces, in the shape of railway subsidies. "Not a cent" for British Columbia, but millions for Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick! "Not a cent" for a province larger in area than all the maritime provinces combined, and possessing more valuable natural resources (with one exception) than any other province in the Dominion! "Not a cent" for British Columbia, which elected a solid contingent of government supporters, who, with a consistency to pledges and a lavish obedience to party worthier of a better cause and a better fate, have been the tools of the government-puppets, dancing when the strings were pulled. The railway subsidy resolutions brought down during the dying hours of the session, distributed in the four provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, the sum of $2,187,600, but "not a cent" in British Columbia. We have classified the grants to railways, and find the favored provinces have received bonuses about as follows:

We wanted government aid for the Okanagan and Shuswap Railway, a road fifty miles in length, and we suppose our representatives pressed the claims of the enterprise upon the attention of the government. If they did not do so—if they did not act unitedly in demanding fair treatment—they failed in their duty to their constituents and proved themselves unworthy to occupy the positions to which they were elected. But if the interests of province were not sacrificed by the men elected to protect and advance them—if the responsibility for the refusal of assistance to the Okanagan railway rests solely with the government, who no doubt ignored the representations of our members—a continuance of the blind and unreasoning support of British Columbia members is no longer possible, unless, indeed, they are prepared to lick the hand that smote them. Even our morning contemporary has stated that a province in opposition (like Quebec or New Brunswick) is more likely to have its claims admitted and its railways subsidized than is British Columbia, with its entire delegation supporting the government on every question from a purely party standpoint. The lesson we have learned is a severe but useful one. Without possessing party politics as understood in the east, we elected party representatives, who have voted, not as independent and intelligent men, but as "supporters" of Sir John A. Macdonald, and simply to keep that gentleman in office. They now have their reward, and are returning from the east without having accomplished anything in the interest of their constituents or for the benefit of the province as a whole. And so long as they are recoguized as the "property" of the government, we need not expect any different treatment. The Okanagan and Shuswap Railway subsidy was lost simply because British Columbia members were not independent.

THE ONDERDONK JOB.

The Toronto Mail, an independent supporter of the government, says: "Mr. POPE, the Minister of Railways, should make haste to explain the purchase of old plant from ONDERDONK & Co. The arbitrators gave $72,000 as the value of the material, but the government paid Mr. ONDERDONK $199,000. Why was the valuation of the arbitrators so largely increased? What has become of the plant? What is its present value?" The Colonist, of this city, is about the only journal in the Dominion that has attempted to defend the job.

Ex-Premier Ross is now mentioned as Québec's lieut.-governor.

It is said that Mr. Baird will resign at the end of the session, and will not run again for Queen's, N. B.

Chapleau, it is said now, positively declines to be shelved and will not take the Quebec governorship. At a cabinet meeting a few days ago, it is said there was a big row. There is considerable speculation as to the course Chapleau will pursue. Should he turn ugly he could make it very awkward for the government, although prominent Quebec liberals said to-day that the Secretary of State would not carry more than four or five members with him.

Depositors in government savings banks in future cannot have more than $1000 to their credit, nor can they deposit more than $300 per annum for the first two years they hold a bank book.

It is understood the Dominion Government has decided on their policy regarding the question of disallowance in Manitoba, under the new phase that the policy has assumed, and that the policy will be a rather startling and vigorous one.

IN THE NATIONAL LIBRARY.

Reservoir for the Newspapers—Maps of All Sorts and Sizes—Magazines.

The great reservoir for the newspapers of the library is away down under the crypt, seventeen feet below the ground and on a level with the tomb of Washington. The dome with its 8,000,000 pounds of iron and stone rests over them, and the light of the sun never shines upon their backs except when they are carried out for reference. Going down among these newspapers is like entering the catacombs, and a wonderful catacomb of intellectual life they are. You wander in and out through narrow walls of bound papers surrounded by the dry bones of the thought of two centuries. The brains of a dozen nations and of hundreds of thousands of minds are stored away in these coffin like book covers, and could the thoughts represented here have utterance they would form a babel worse than the mad jargon of the famed tower of the scriptures. There are more than 5,000 fat volumes of newspapers stored away here in the dark, and the musty smell is the only thing that greets you as you walk through them by the flickering light of the spectral gas jet.

There are other intellectual ghosts here in the shapes of maps, and about 10,000 of these of all sizes from that of a page of letter paper to one made during the centennial, big enough to carpet a big parlor, lie around you. Speak to the keeper and he will show you some rare and curious ones. He has some made on the revolutionary battle fields in the pen and ink sketches of the officers of both armies. He takes pride in this collection and says he has nearly every work the map producing mind has made since the beginning of the government.

All the periodicals of the country come to the national library, and there are more than 10,000 bound volumes of magazines. One whole story of one of the wings is devoted to these, and they form an invaluable collection of articles upon almost every subject. A book is published which gives an index to magazine literature. It is known as "Poole's Index," and it gives references to nearly all of the prominent magazines that have been published. By the use of it the literary people dig many good things out of these magazines, and they are used perhaps more than any other class of books in the library.—Frank G. Carpenter in The Cosmopolitan.

What Is "Cologne Spirits?"

Nearly all that the big distilleries now make is known to the trade as "cologne spirits." This article is about the same as alcohol, except that it is even more absolute in its purity than alcohol. When these big distilleries that make this cologne spirits begin running off the products of their mash tubs they run the first part as alcohol. It has a slight tinge of color, and is not as absolute in its purity as that which follows later on. The operator watches the stream of liquor as it comes from the tub, and as he sees it become absolutely pure turns it into another tank, and it is termed cologne spirits. This is the highest grade of distilled spirits, so pure that it is absolutely colorless and odorless. It is concentrated drunkenness, and when it is wanted to be transformed into whisky it is reduced to about one-half its strength with water, some burnt sugar put in to give it a color, some glucose added to make it smooth and oily, like old whisky, and it passes for the real article. Many a supposed connoisseur has smacked his lips over alleged twenty-year-old whisky, and pronounced it the finest in the country, when the article he was complimenting was cologne spirits, only a month old, flavored with glucose and burnt sugar. On the whole, however, the whisky of to-day is not, the revenue people say, as hurtful as that turned out by the whisky makers twenty years ago. The chemical changes which were then performed by a dangerous acid are now produced by other means, and some of the poisons which destroyed the stomachs of whisky drinkers then are not to be found in the cup now.—Omaha Herald.

Suicides in Washington.

A district official, who has a head for figures and conclusions, tells me what is decidedly curious, that since the Democrats came into power the number of suicides in Washington has considerably increased. "I explain it," he says, "on very plain grounds. Nothing is to blame for it. It is simply the consequence of a good many people being turned out of office and a good many others failing to get offices. For the last fortnight we had a suicide nearly every day. When there isn't a suicide there is a shooting scrape of some sort in which the man who shoots or the man who is shot is a fellow that has been in office or was waiting to get in." The increase of suicides has been so decided that the boarding house keepers have begun to organize some sort of an insurance against melancholy self murders. One landlady writes in a note in a local newspaper that within the past year she has had two interesting suicides at her house which cost her nearly $300. She says they both left beautiful letters, but there wasn't a dollar in their pockets, and they deluged her beds and carpets with blood. One had a friend to bury him, but neither had any friends to pay the damage done. I make the suggestion without charge that these much suffering people organize themselves into a mutual insurance society. A slight annual premium from the innumerable boarding houses in this city would easily pay all losses from this cause.—Washington Cor. Milwaukee Sentinel.

Ten Per Cent. a Month.

One of the auditors of the treasury department, who had rented a house in a fashionable quarter of Washington, was surprised to discover, when the end of the month rolled around, that his landlord was none other than one of the messengers in his bureau. Further inquiry developed the fact that the latter had been loaning money through the department to impecunious clerks and others, extorting in return an interest of 10 per cent. a month. The ex-messenger claims to have kept $10,000 in constant circulation, which, deducting losses, netted him a profit of about $8,000 a year.—Frank Leslie's.

Lincoln's Iron Wedge.

A rusty iron wedge, with the initials "A. L." rudely stamped upon it, was recently found in an ancient house near Old Salem. It has been recognized by former companions of Abe Lincoln as the famous wedge which he used in splitting rails in that vicinity. The initials were made by Lincoln himself, in the presence of J. Q. Spears, now a resident of Tulula.—Boston Transcript.

THE STORY OF A MINE.

BY BRET HARTE.

(Copyrighted, 1888, by Houghton, Mifflin and published by arrangements with them.)

CHAPTER VII.

WHO PLEAD FOR IT.

THERE can be little doubt the coroner's jury of Fresno would have returned a verdict of "death from alcoholism," as the result of their inquest into the cause of Concho's death, had not Dr. Guild fought nobly in support of the law and his own convictions. A majority of the jury objected to there being any inquest at all. A sincere juryman thought it hard that whenever a Greaser pegged out in a sneakin' kind o' way, American citizens should be taken from their business to find out what ailed him. "S'pose he was killed," said another, "thar ain't no time this thirty year he weren't, so to speak, just sufferin' for it, ez his nat'ral right as a Mexican." The jury at last compromised by bringing in a verdict of homicide against certain parties unknown. Yet it was understood tacitly that these unknown parties were severally Wiles and Pedro; Manuel, Miguel and Roscommon proving an unmistakable alibi. Wiles and Pedro had fled to Lower California, and Manuel, Miguel and Roscommon deemed it advisable, in the then excited state of the public mind, to withhold the forged application and claim from the courts and the public comment. So that for a year after the murder of Concho and the flight of his assassins "The Blue Mass Mining Company" remained in undisturbed and actual possession of the mine, and reigned in their stead.

But the spirit of the murdered Concho would not down any more than that of the murdered Banquo, and so wrought, no doubt, in a quiet, Concho-like way, sore trouble with the "Blue Mass Company." For a great capitalist and master of avarice came down to the mine and found it fair, and taking one of the company aside, offered to lend his name and a certain amount of coin for a controlling interest, accompanying the generous offer with a suggestion that if it were not acceded to he would be compelled to buy up various Mexican mines and flood the market with quicksilver to the great detriment of the "Blue Mass Company," which thoughtful suggestion, offered by a man frequently alluded to as one of "California's great mining princes," and as one who had "done much to develop the resources of the state," was not to be lightly considered; and so, after a cautious non-consultation with the company, and a commendable secrecy, the stockholder sold out. Whereat it was speedily spread abroad that the Great Capitalist had taken hold of "Blue Mass," and the stock went up, and the other stockholders rejoiced—until the Great Capitalist found it was necessary to put up expensive mills, to employ a high salaried superintendent—in fact, to develop the mine by spending of its earnings, so that the stock quoted at 112 was finally saddled with an assessment of $30 per share. Another assessment of $50 to enable the superintendent to proceed to Russia and Spain and examine into the workings of the quicksilver mines there, and also a general commission to the gifted and scientific Pillageman to examine into the various component parts of quicksilver, and report if it could not be manufactured from ordinary sandstone by steam or electricity, speedily brought the other stockholders to their senses. It was at this time the good fellow "Tom," the serious-minded "Dick" and the speculative but fortunate "Harry," brokers of the Great Capitalist, found it convenient to buy up, for the Great Capitalist aforesaid, the various other shares at great sacrifice.

I fear that I have bored my readers in thus giving the tiresome details of that ingenuous American pastime which my countrymen display in their epigrammatic way as the "freezing-out process." And lest any reader should question the ethics of the proceeding, I beg him to remember that one gentleman accomplished in this art was always a sincere and direct opponent of the late Mr. John Oakhurst, gambler.

But for once the Great Master of Avarice had not taken into sufficient account the avarice of others, and was suddenly and virtuously shocked to learn that an application for a patent for certain lands, known as the "Red-Rock Rancho," was about to be offered before the United States land commission. This claim covered his mining property. But the information came quietly and secretly, as all of the Great Master's information was obtained, and he took the opportunity to sell out his clouded title and his proprietorship to the only remaining member of the original "Blue Mass company," a young fellow of pith, before many tongued rumor had voiced the news far and wide. The blow was a heavy one to the party left in possession. Saddled by the enormous debts and expenses of the Great Capitalist, with a credit further injured by the defection of this lucky magnate, who was admired for his skill in anticipating a loss, and whose relinquishment of any project meant ruin to it, the single handed, impoverished possessor of the mine, whose title was contested and whose reputation was yet to be made—poor Biggs, first secretary and only remaining officer of the "Blue Mass company," looked ruefully over his books and his last transfer, and sighed. But I have before intimated that he was built of good stuff and that he believed in his work—which was well—and in himself, which was better; and so, having faith even as a grain of mustard seed, I doubt not that he would have been able to remove that mountain of quicksilver beyond the overlapping of fraudulent grants. And, again, Providence—having disposed of these several scamps—raised up to him a friend. But that friend is of sufficient importance to this veracious history to deserve a paragraph to himself.

The Pylades of this Orestes was known of ordinary mortals as Royal Thatcher. His genealogy, birth and education are, I take it, of little account to this chronicle, which is only concerned with his friendship for Biggs and the result thereof. He had known Biggs a year or two previously; they had shared each other's purses, bunks, cabins, provisions, and often friends, with that perfect freedom from obligation which belonged to the pioneer life. The varying tide of fortune had just then stranded Thatcher on a desert sand hill in San Francisco with an uninsured cargo of expectations, while to Thatcher's active but not curious fancy it had apparently lifted his friend's bark over the bar in the Monterey mountains into an open quicksilver sea. So that he was considerably surprised on receiving a note from Biggs to this purport:

"DEAR ROY: Run down here and help a fellow. I've too much of a load for one. Maybe we can make a team and pull 'Blue Mass' out yet. BUDGER."

Thatcher, sitting in his scantily-furnished lodgings deficient of his next meal and in arrears for rent, heard this Macedonian cry as St. Paul did. He wrote a promissory and soothing note to his landlady, but fearing the "sweet sorrow" of a personal parting, let his collapsed valise down from his window by a cord, and, by means of an economical combination of stage riding and pedestrianism, he presented himself at the close of the third day at Biggs' door. In a few moments he was in possession of the story; half an hour later in possession of half the mine, its infelix past and its doubtful future, equally with his friend.

Business over, Biggs turned to look at his partner. "You're aged some since I saw you last," he said. "Starvation luck, I s'pose. I'd know your eyes, old fellow, if I saw them among ten thousand; but your lips are parched, and your mouth's grimmer than it used to be." Thatcher smiled to show that he could still do so, but did not say, as he might have said, that self-control, suppressed resentment, disappointment and occasional hunger had done something in the way of correcting nature's obvious mistakes and shutting up a kindly mouth. He only took off his threadbare coat, rolled up his sleeves, and saying, "We've got lots of work and some fighting before us," pitched into the affairs of the Blue Mass company on the instant.

A New Domestic Telephone.

"I was invited to be present the other day at some telephonic experiments between Paris and Brussels with a new apparatus known as the 'micro-telephone push button.'

"What makes this apparatus the most successful of telephonic instruments is, that it can be made for half a crown—that is to say, for not more than the price of the ordinary push button. At front doors, in the interior rooms of houses, everywhere, in short, where the ordinary electric buttons are used, the telephonic button may be introduced. It will by this means be possible to give or receive instructions, to know who is knocking at the door, to communicate, in short, by speaking as well as by ringing. The railway companies are making experiments with this apparatus as a means of communication between compartments of carriages. It is being fitted up on trial in hotels. I have seen it at work at the door of a private house where I was replied to by those within without their having stirred from their places, and without the door being opened. Between Paris and Brussels this instrument, costing half a crown, worked with admirable precision, and it was not altogether without an eerie feeling that I listened to a voice with a slight Belgian accent coming to me from a distance of more than 200 miles.

"The inventor is Dr. Cornelius Herz, one day nominated grand officer of the Legion of Honor, next day described as an emissary of Germany, and lastly as the friend, adviser and confidant of Gen. Boulanger. He is in reality an electrician whose inventive talent has been stimulated by his residence in America, where there is a boundless demand for improvement in electrical apparatus and in all mechanical contrivances."—Paris Cor. London Times.

A Milkman's Thieving Trick.

"The ways of the milkman are past finding out," said a Brooklyn housekeeper to a reporter yesterday. "I have dealt with them for about fifty years, and I find that I don't know all their dodges yet."

"What's a new one?" was asked.

"Well, it is something I just stumbled across this morning. You see my next door neighbor and I used to patronize the same dealer. But about three months ago I decided to try another whose driver came around earlier in the morning. This fellow came before we were up, so that the girl had to set out the empty jar the night before. Well, that new man had been coming for about a week, when we began to miss our milk supply. Somebody stole it, of course, but we couldn't find out who it was. The milkman who had previously supplied us continued to sell to our neighbor, and as he came later than our man we were forced to buy from him whenever our regular supply was stolen. Well, we stood it until yesterday, and then I decided that we might as well go back to our old dealer. We did so. This morning I told the new man that he needn't come any more, explaining my reasons for letting him go. 'Man alive, don't you know who has been taking the milk?' he asked in a tone of great surprise. 'No,' I replied; 'who is it?' 'Why, the old milkman, of course,' was his reply; 'that is an old game that we all work when we can.'

"Sure enough, he was right, as I found out upon further investigation. But I liked the fellow's enterprise and I am going to stick to him."—New York Tribune.

The Stamp Mania in Persia.

The stamp mania exists among European residents at Teheran no less than it does in Europe, and the reader may be surprised to learn that it is quite as difficult to make a complete collection of Persian stamps at Teheran as in London. The interest shown in the subject there is indicated by an incident that happened during my residence in Persia. A duel came near being fought on account of a rare Persian stamp. The quarrel was between a prominent member of one of the legations and a Russian colonel. Both were enthusiastic collectors, and the former accused the latter of stealing an excessively rare stamp from his album when looking it over. The Russian at once sent a challenge, which was accepted with empressement. The day was appointed and the hour, when the stamp was suddenly produced by a lady, who said it had been loaned to her by the colonel simply to show it to her, and she now hastened to return it in season to prevent bloodshed. The explanation, unsatisfactory as it might be, was accepted and the duel was declared off.—S. G. W. Benjamin.

Fashionable Profanity.

In the way of shocking things, fashionable profanity among wealthy and refined girls may be mentioned. While it has not gone to the extent of the worst oaths from feminine lips in good society, the milder expletives have come into piquant use. The evil began last autumn with a vogue for quaint exclamations. These were at first merely original and curious, and the girl who could make unique ejaculations was thereby distinguished in her circle. Gradually the demand for stronger, riskier language arose, and the license of fashion extended to almost but not quite outright oaths. Now the genuine damn is not unheard in the boudoir and parlor of the belle, and she exclaims, "My God!" on the slightest occasion. The latter offense is excused by some in consequence of French precedent. Parisian ladies of the aristocracy say "Mon Dieu" commonly. But the habit has reached its limit here, revulsion has come and profanity from sweet mouths may be expected to cease this spring.—New York Letter.

Why Is It Twenty-one Guns?

Former Sub Treasurer Thomas C. Acton met a reporter in Wall street the other day and said: "For fifteen years I have hunted high and low to find the reason for firing twenty-one guns as a national salute, not only in this but in other countries. I applied to the army and navy departments for information, and was told that it was a 'regulation.' I knew that before. I then asked Judge Charles P. Daly, who knows about everything that is worth knowning, and Judge Daly couldn't help me. What I want to know is, why are twenty-one guns always fired for a national salute?"—Philadelphia Call.

—Kurtz's Jubilee Cigars are now ready.*

—The C. P. R. steamer Arthabasca was released uninjured on the 19th inst.

—Dayton, W. T., had a fire the other day whereby $115,000 worth of property was destroyed.

—For a delicious MILK PUNCH or a genuine COCKTAIL go to the Pritchard House.

—The BANK of British Columbia have moved into their new quarters in Vancouver.

—Our German citizens propose holding a picnic at the Victoria Gardens on or about July 20th.

—Capt. H. L. Tibbals, the Puget Sound pilot, will start on a three months eastern trip this week.

—Banjos, Guitars, Violins and Zithers, etc., at lower prices than ever, at M. W. Waitt & Co's music store.

—Tuning and Repairing—All kinds of musical instruments. H. PETERS, Jamieson's book store.

—Mr. James Smith, late purser on the Wm. Irving, has been promoted to the Yosemite.

—The New Westminster Columbian is now happy—having a $10,000 libel suit on hand. Dr. Trew is the plaintiff.

—The wires went down this afternoon, somewhere between this city and New Westminster.

—The Hope this afternoon brought down from the west coast a tow of logs for the saw mill of W. P. Sayward of this city.

—At the police court to-day Bert Williams and Margaret Moore, on remand, charged with stealing, were sentenced to four months hard labor each.

—The first green corn of the season arrived this morning from California. The vegetable is of fairly good quality and retails at 75 cents per dozen.

—A well selected stock of ENGLISH WALKING STICKS, LAWN TENNIS goods and Spalding BASE BALL GOODS, at J. BARNSLEY'S, Fort street, near Douglas. *

—CLEAR THE TRACK—Give Pendray & Co.'s QUEEN JUBILEE SOAP a show; it is the best ever offered to the public as a laundry and toilet soap combined; try it.*

—No need of spoiling your hands or injuring your finest fabrics, if you will use Pendray & Co.'s "QUEEN JUBILEE SOAP."

—A consignment of John Wieland's celebrated Philadelphia lager beer received to-day and on draught at the Jubilee Saloon, Johnson street; 5 cents per glass. *

—The Geo. W. Elder arrived at 5 o'clock this morning, after a tedious voyage of 92 hours, due to adverse winds, which are generally met with during the summer.

—Tomb and Headstones, Monuments, in Marble, imported and local Granite, Mantle pieces and Wash Stands in Marble, artistically executed, and at reasonable rates, at George Radge's Marble Works, Douglas street, Victoria. Call and see specimens of work. *

—REDUCED PRICES.—Just received over 200 patterns fine mouldings, steel engravings and all latest pictures in stock. Framing and mounting a specialty. JOS. SOMMERS, Government street. *

—D. R. MURRAY, General S. S. Agent for Cunard, Guion, Albany, Dominion, Inman and all S. S. Co's. Prepaid passages at most favorable rates. Every berth secured on sale. *

—A large number of Victoria's citizens will visit Tacoma next Monday and Tuesday on the occasion of the 4th of July and completion of the N. P. R. R. celebration.

—The raffle for the Broadwood Piano will take place at M. W. Waitt's & Co's music store on Thursday, July 7th, at 8 p. m. Persons holding tickets will please attend.

—Dr. A. C. West, dentist, will for the present occupy dental rooms in Hastings Photographic buildings, Fort street, where his old patrons and all requiring fine dental work, are respectfully invited to call. *

—The C. P. R. are going to carry the war into Africa and are building branch lines to suburban resorts now served by the Grand Trunk, who are very indignant at the action of the C. P. R. for daring to beard the lion in his den.

—The Rev. Dr. Williams who lately visited Victoria in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist conference, gave an account of his travels to the coast from Toronto, covering some 8000 miles over which he had travelled since last April. The address was a most interesting one.

—The passengers on board the R. P. Rithet on her trip to the mainland last Thursday presented Capt. White with an address expressive of the confidence they had in him as a navigator, as well as to his chief engineer Mr. James McArthur. Both of these gentlemen made appropriate responses.

—Many have expressed a desire to go to Tacoma for the 4th of July if a steamer left here on Sunday next. The O. R. & N. Co. has decided to despatch a steamer if sufficient passengers are guaranteed to pay the expenses of it. If no steamer leaves here Sunday, many will stay at home who would otherwise go.

—The Salvation Army had a full house at the Theatre Comique last night. They assembled in front of Frank Campbell's and THE TIMES office, Yates street, and marched to the hall. Capt. Young was the principal speaker. He announced that the building had been leased for a term of three years, an announcement which was received with applause. The usual services, after the collection, were then proceeded with.

—The passengers by the Abyssinia from Yokohama arrived in Montreal in 5 days and 15 hours from Vancouver, making a total of 20 days from Yokohama. It is expected Liverpool would be reached in 7 days from New York, and New York in six days from Vancouver, or a total of 28 days from Yokohama to Liverpool. The distance covered is about 10,500 miles. This is truly quick traveling, but it is the intention to further reduce the time by two days. As it is this will be the fastest time on record by three days.

Miscellaneous.

Mr. G. B. Wright has a large force of men in the Shamrock mine and expects to work three shifts if possible night and day. His pack train is now in running order and ore is being packed to the creek ready for the crusher, which will be placed with the rest of the machinery in the course of a few days. The mill is being framed on the grounds.

Mr. Alex. McPherson while on a prospecting trip yesterday ran across a lead of silver ore that is in sight two feet wide by 500 feet in length, and is pronounced by experts to be the best ore that has been struck yet. The hills are full of prospectors and all are meeting with success.

Mr. G. B. Wright's private residence is completed

Gladstone Cigars.

Reduced Rates.

A dispatch from San Francisco says that on account of the establishment of a subsidized trans Pacific steamship line to run in connection with the Canadian Pacific railway and the low rates that were made in the passenger fares to Asiatic ports, the Pacific mail people have been compelled to make a reduction in their charges. The new passenger rate from San Francisco to Yokohama is $200. The rate is the same to Hongkong, while formerly it was $250 to Yokohama and $300 to Hongkong. The round trip rate of $350 is also made to both cities.

Tony Cigars,

A Midnight Episode.

Who could get lost in Victoria? Yet last night about midnight, as two gentlemen were wending their way home, they were accosted by a gentlemanly marine of the navy, who explained to them having met a young girl about 9 years of age by the old cemetery unable to find her home. It was a case of blind lead the blind—the marine was a perfect stranger to streets and localities.

Black and Tan Cigars,

Looks Serious.

Affairs in the Hawaiian Kingdom are assuming a serious aspect, the cause of the trouble being King Kalakana's extravagance and mismanagement. Three vessels left San Francisco last week for Honolulu loaded with fire-arms and ammunition. H. M. S. Conquest will, it is believed, start for Honolulu on Saturday and it is reported the Triumph will shortly follow.

Slightly Off.

It is understood that the Government have secured room in the asylum at New Westminster for the young man who wrote the fate of the "Egyptian Trophy" which appeared in the Colonist of this morning. It would have been better for the world if the scribe and Gordon had changed places. To say the least of it, it was far fetched.

Strawberry Social.

The strawberry social in connection with the First Presbyterian Church will be held in the Sunday school room this (Tuesday) evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. Drs. Burns and Pollock will be present and a good programme will be presented. Admission, including refreshments, 50 cents.

Inquest.

An inquest was held on the bodies of the boys, F. J. Maltby and Thos. Deighton, drowned in Pike Lake, by Coroner Jackson and the following jury: James Stewart, foreman, Edward Miller, Henry Price, John Harrie, John H. Seafe, J. Price. A verdict of "accidentally drowned" was returned.

Champion Scotch Fling Dancer.

At the Club Theatre last evening there was a good sized audience, who all went away well pleased. The feature of the entertainment was M'lle. Bertha in the most artistic songs and dances that have ever been seen in this city. Her Scotch Highland Fling cannot be surpassed in any country. *

Sale To-Morrow.

Mr. J. Davies will sell the furniture and effects of Mr. I. Oppenheimer at that gentleman's residence, on Cormorant street, to-morrow, beginning at 11 a. m. There are a great many articles to sell and parties furnishing should be present.

Acknowledged Everywhere

That Johnston & Murphy are the best manufacturers of Men's Fine Boots and Shoes on the American continent. A large supply for the present season just received by their agent—see them.

H. MANSELL, B. C. Boot & Shoe Store, opposite post office. *

Real Estate Sale.

Mr. Wm. Tasker has sold his center section of unimproved land on the prairie near Ladner's Landing, to a gentleman from eastern Canada. The consideration was $20 per acre. This land was held at $1 per acre less than ten years ago.

Alaskan Shipment.

At Vancouver there are now lying two hundred tons of freight consigned to the Treadwell mine, Douglas Island, Alaska, from the east via the Canadian Pacific Railway. It will be called for by the Ancon on her next northward trip.

New Steamer.

The new steel steamer for the C. P. N. Co. is now having the finishing touches put on her hull at the Union Iron Works ship-yard, San Francisco, prior to being launched. It is understood that she will be appropriately named the Victoria.

Seal Skins.

There were shipped yesterday, over the Canadian Pacific Railway, consigned to London via New York, 57 cases of seal skins, by Mr. T. Lubbe of this city.

Another Trans-Pacific Line.

The Santa Fe officials have decided to run a line of steamers from San Diego to Honolulu. The steamer City of Topeka will soon start on the initial trip.

Pianos and Organs.

One first-class, second-hand, upright Piano, good as new, and one first-class Organ, American make, for sale by H. PETERS, Jamieson's book store. *

They've Come.

The Jubilee number of the West Shore just received.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brydges will leave for the east this evening.

Mr. W. R. Ladner, M. P. P., is in the city.

Lord and Lady London arrived by the Sound steamer to-day.

The Rev. Dr. Jenkins, of Montreal, one of the fathers of the Presbyterian church in that city, will shortly visit Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Smith, of the Dominion land office, Winnipeg, are expected to reach the coast in a day or two.

The Rev. Dr. Cochrane preached in Vancouver last Sunday. He will reach Victoria on the Thursday boat from the mainland.

Mr. George Wise, late government police officer at Yale, has been appointed registrar of the Supreme Court at New Westminster.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irving arrived from the south to-day. They have been absent a month. Both are greatly improved in health.

The Revs. Drs. Burns, Archibald and Pollock, will leave for the east by the Yosemite to-night. The Rev. Mr. Bain and Mrs. Bain, of Perth, will also be of party.

Mrs. Robert Grant, lately of Vancouver, left on a visit to her friends in Elora and Guelph by the Rithet this morning. She expects to be absent about three months.

The Rev. P. McF. McLeod, of Toronto, will officiate in the Presbyterian pulpit of this city on Sunday, the 17th of July. It is to be hoped the rev. gentleman will consent to deliver one of his excellent lectures to a Victoria audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Begg, and Miss Begg were passengers from the mainland last night. Mr. Begg for many years represented the C. P. R. emigration department in Liverpool and with much acceptance to all such as were anxious to emigrate thither to Canada.

Mr. A. M. Burgess, Deputy Minister of the Interior, and Mrs. Burgess, are at the Colonial, New Westminster. Mr. Burgess is accompanied by his private secretary. Mr. Burgess's visit is a business one relating to the Dominion lands in this province. He will visit Victoria before returning east.

By the Rithet from New Westminster last night there arrived Mr. Mrs and Miss Begg, Mr and Mrs Davis, Mrs Wallace, Miss Atkinson, Miss Cullen, one Sister of St. Ann's Mrs Blackie, Mrs Bussanich, Calhoun, Woodward, Dr. Devan, C J Nickson, P Dean, Geo Hope, Crawford, Lovett, McIntyre, Morrison, W H Ladner, J Holland and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Drummond, of Ottawa, who have been guests at the Clarence for the last week leave for their home this evening. Mr. Drummond was manager of the Bank of Montreal in Ottawa for close upon fifty years. Mrs. Drummond is in her 77th year of her age. Both are hale, hearty and well preserved in years notwithstanding that they have passed the alloted three score and ten by almost another ten. It is not often that such aged people like an excursion across the continent. Mr. Drummond's brother is a prominent member of the great Redpath Sugar Refining Company of Montreal.

The Hon. Thomas Reid, of Maine, leader of the Republican party in the House of Representatives and a very prominent citizen of the U. S., and the Hon. R. R. Hitt, of Illinois, who for many years was Assistant Secretary of State for the U. S., and at present leader of the minority party on Foreign Affairs on the Committee of the House at Washington, accompanied by Mrs. Hitt, paid Victoria a brief visit yesterday. They were shown through the city by the U. S. Consul Stevens who was most attentive to the distinguished visitors, prior to their visit to the far north. They expressed themselves as delighted with Victoria and its environs.

Mr. J. N. Muir, Principal of the High School, returned yesterday from a brief visit to San Francisco. He came overland by the California & Oregon Railway. Of California he did not see much as it was dusk when Oakland was left. The 27 miles of staging was covered in four hours—a most delightful drive. Southern Oregon to Mr. Muir looked remarkably fine. The crops presented a healthy appearance, and the promise of a heavy yield was encouraging. In both San Francisco and Portland Mr. Muir had to pay a heavy discount on Bank of British Columbia bills, whilst that bank has agencies in these cities. This he considers is not as it should be and requires investigation. Mr. Muir will spend the remainder of his holidays in Vancouver

After the Fun.

His Worship the Mayor was promised a contribution of $50 or $100 from the hackmen for the jubilee fund, and with that confidence in human nature which is a prominent trait of his character he felt morally certain that the promise would be kept. But, now that the jubilee is over, his Worship has been informed that instead of $50 or $100 not one nickle will be given. We incline to think that there is a misunderstanding, because the men who make the most of these celebrations are usually most liberal in contributing—or they ought to be.

The Place for Bargains.

J. Schl has just opened, in addition to his well assorted stock of Furniture, Carpets, Oil Cloth and Linoleum, a complete line of Crockery, Glassware, Lamps, and Bar Glasses, the finest ever offered in the country, at remarkably low prices, having arrived before the advance in freight rates. *

The Wires.

The telegraph wires are again prostrated, and we are deprived of our afternoon dispatches. This sort of thing has become so common that announcements of this kind have to be given almost daily.

Real Estate.

Fourteen acres of land at Gordon Head were sold by auction to-day by Mr. Geo. Byrnes, to terminate the partnership of Ella & Robertson, for the sum of $1600.

Preaching by Signs.

The Episcopal service is always impressive, and when it had the mantle of perfect silence thrown about it is particularly so. There are about fifty deaf mutes in Chicago, who worship once a month in St. James' church, Cass and Huron streets. The Rev. A. W. Mann, himself a deaf mute, who has been nearly twelve years in the pulpit, is the rector, his field embracing the entire country bounded by the Alleghanies on the east, the Ohio river on the south and Kansas on the west. Of the 36,000 deaf mutes in the United States, 3,000 are communicants in the various dioceses which the Rev. Dr. Mann ministers to.

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve" was Dr. Mann's text. There was prayer—silent prayer—offered by the fingers, while the piano in the room below peeled forth a Sabbath school melody joined by a hundred voices, but the noise did not disturb the silent worshipers. Then the litany was repeated, the congregation responding in pantomime concert—no choir, no organ, no music to stir the soul to religious thoughts. And then, when the rector had fairly launched out in his sermon and from appearances was growing eloquent, the wife of Dr. Vibbert came into the room with her large Bible class of young ladies, and the noise which usually attends such exercises was begun, but the discourse went on unceasingly, the fingers of the Rev. Dr. Mann jerking and jumping and clutching and gesticulating with almost lightning rapidity. His auditors watched their movements with the most intense interest, their faces sometimes clouded as if listening to the description of some horrible thing, and then again an expression of joy would seem to follow some dexterous movement of the silent preacher. When he had delivered himself of some eloquent peroration the rector would stop a moment, presumably giving his observers time to comprehend, and then he would beat the palm of his left hand with the clinched fist of the right several times, and this he would follow by several reflective nods of the head, as if signifying "yes, yes; that is it," or "that is true."—Chicago News.

Human Nature at the Bar.

Behind the bar is the point from which a man might study human nature. You can see a man come in and go through a dozen different moods before he goes out. You can tell a good fellow by the way he takes his drink. He first takes it quickly, but before he does he always looks around to see if there isn't some one he can get to join him. The mean man is the fellow who sneaks in and drinks and lays down his fifteen cents and walks out, as though he is afraid of being surprised into conviviality. The southern or western man stepping into a bar puts his hand down in his pocket and puts his money on the board before he asks for his drink. The New Englander pays after the drink is over.

Southern and western people are more graceful drinkers than others. They bring the glass to the lips with a graceful curve, empty it easily and then take it down slowly. There is no bolting. Somehow or another a man who has been long behind the bar can tell a good man before he says a word, just by the expression of his face as he steps to the counter, and the way he calls for his drink. A barkeeper who didn't know the nature of his customers could not hold his place long, for he'd be unsociable for men inclined that way, "fresh" when he ought to keep in the background, rough when he ought to be mild, etc., and the result would be he would make enemies, and the house would lose all of its trade.—Globe Democrat.

Hospitalities of a Philadelphia Club.

There is a club of solid men in Philadelphia which takes supreme delight in extending its hospitalities to some honored guest and then guying him until he imagines that he has by some mistake got into a lunatic asylum. Their latest victim was United States treasurer, Conrad N. Jordan. They invited him to an elaborate banquet, where everything was conducted with the utmost decorum and reserve until he was called upon to respond to a toast. Scarcely had he mentioned how happy he was to be among them when the whole company started in lustily to sing "Happy Moments." Gratified, though slightly amazed, at this exhibition of enthusiasm, the treasurer proceeded with his speech, only to be interrupted by a stentorian voice giving out the notes of "One Bright River and that Bright River is Jordan," in which all tongues vociferously joined. At this stage of the proceedings the guest began to comprehend the programme, and modified his remarks so as to admit of a graceful finish. But the watchful chorus leader divined his purpose and rang out the keynote of "Roll, Jordan, Roll!" Finally, when he had gladly sat down, the festive hosts comforted him with "Jordan am a Hard Road to Trabbel." We will not divulge the name of the club, because it has other victims on the list whom it proposes to entertain and astonish in due season.—New York Graphic.

An Instructive Bird.

A suburban family have a canary which has been a cherished inmate of their household for fifteen years. The old bird has been completely paralyzed as to one leg and one wing, and holds his poor withered leg close up to his body, but he would hop about cheerfully enough on the other leg if it were not for the fact that he has become totally blind with age. Not a ray of light can he see, and he has to summon the family when he wants to mount his perch, and he does not hesitate to summon them on such occasions by a call that they have no difficulty in understanding.

But this decrepit old canary has one trait which commends him more than ever to the affection of the family. Whenever the sun comes out and the bright light strikes his cage he bursts forth into a song as joyous and musical as any that a canary ever sung. Some gleam of the brightness penetrates the film over his old eyes, and he pours out the torrent of his vocal rejoicing as if he could see far out over the fields illuminated with the sunlight. His cheerfulness amid tremendous discouragement has been an example of bravery that has carried more than one human being through seasons of trouble and despondency.—Boston Transcript.

Capabilities of Wells.

Various attempts are in progress to get from artesian wells not only water, but power and heat as well. Machinery is already driven by the pressure in France, and experience shows that the heat may be increased by adding to the depth of the well. The deepest well in the world is being sunk at Pesth, Hungary, to supply hot water for public baths. It now yields daily 170,600 gallons heated to 158 degs., and the boring is to be continued until the temperature is raised to 176 degs.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Wasted Money Is Wasted Strength.

Aside from the lack of money, there is a prodigality too often observable which is never a part of the successful man. Many men can now look back upon their lives and discover that they have wasted what could have proven the basis of a comfortable fortune. No one would willingly part with any portion of his physical ability to make money, yet many recklessly waste their wages, which is as much a part of their financial strength as their right arm is of their physical. Wasted or idle money is as wasted or idle strength.—The Current.
